Speaker for August 15th, 2010

Gordon Willison

Hands on Dowsing

Gordon is a founding member of the Dowsers Society of NSW Inc., and is an Honorary Life Member of the Society. He has been dowsing as a health practitioner for many years and has a wealth of dowsing knowledge.

Gordon will be teaching the audience to use dowsing charts. Some charts will be available but you are welcome to bring your own if you have any. More charts are available on line at this address: www.pendulumcharts.com/charts.html.

Gordon has used charts for a long time to determine the condition of patients and in choosing remedies, homeopathic, Bach Flower etc. He is particularly enthusiastic about the benefits of cell salts.

He will be presenting a device of his invention that he uses to broadcast remedies to a patient anywhere in the world. If he has a sample from that person, hair for example, he can diagnose and proceed to send them the remedy.

This should be a very exciting talk.

From the President

I have just returned from the NEXUS conference held on the Sunshine Coast. The weather was either cold or wet, or both.

It was good to see that I wasn't the only dowser there. Trevor Harding, who prints our newsletter and who will be hosting our Water Seminar at his farm near Mudgee in October, was there; as were Colin and Julie Zwan from the Pocket NSW 2483, who will be tutoring our Beginners Seminar next February; as well as Bob Coe who's a Feng Shui expert from Dural, and Elaine Hope a Health Researcher and consultant who lives in the Snowy Mountains. There would have been more of our members at the conference, but urgent work requirements stopped others who would normally have attended from being there.

The lectures were wide ranging in scope and the presentations were brilliant with fantastic slides illustrating the various themes. It is always so exciting to attend such a conference and the adrenalin which is produced enables you to keep going over a long day without tiring at all. Even when you think you know a fair amount about a subject you still have wonderful surprises.

Donna Fisher talked about Dirty Electricity, EMF's and Health, a subject our own Lyn McLean has written a book on (What's the BuZZ?), and introduced new material. Afterwards, participants were rushing to buy a hand held machine to test their hotel rooms and a gizmo for cleaning up the dirty electricity. Over a cup of tea in the interval, Trevor reminded me about the magnet and a piece of wire that Norm Dodge invented that costs about $2.50 which apparently does the same thing, at a fraction of the cost.

Klaus Dona, a museum curator from Austria, showed slides of ancient archaeological artifacts from all over the world including pyramids, skulls from creatures with enormous elongated heads and the skeletons of giants.

He related these to the myths and legends from every country. He showed artifacts containing writing found all over the world as some kind of universal tongue, and then related them to the Biblical Tower of Babel.

Apart from brilliant lectures about what are commonly referred to as conspiracy theories, including Kennedy's Assassination, 9/11 (the greatest bank robbery in history) and the subsequent Iraq War, non-existent weapons of mass destruction and the global financial crisis, we were enthralled to hear the theory of an all Electric Universe by Wal Thornhill, a physicist and engineer from Canberra. He said that the Universe is held together by electromagnetic energy and we should forget about gravity. You can remember that the next time a book falls on your head in a bookshop and, as you feel for a bump, wonder if you are being urged to buy a book entitled The Electric Universe.

Then there's the theory of an expanding Earth by James Maxlow, a geologist from W.A. in place of the tectonic plates theory. The lower gravity 65,000 years ago enabled the huge dinosaurs to move around. Nassim Haramein spoke about Sacred Geometry and unified fields and explained how we are all joined up. Finally, the physicists are joining the mystics.

There were several health related lectures and just before the end Trisha McCagh talked about communication with animals, something we can all do. Trisha works with vets, from the advantage point that the animals tell her how they're feeling. Two of our members are able to help birds because of their special affinity with them, Dr Ross Perry and Pat Corbett.

Our Society is lucky to have so many talented members who are working for a better world and on top of that we serve the best afternoon tea in the whole of Sydney. But you have to come to the meeting if you would like to get to know people better, if you live near enough that is. So will I see you there? I'll make the DVDs of the lectures available to the library if Marilyn can find room for them.

Best wishes

Noel

Quantifying and Healing Earth Energies

by John Living

Reprinted from The American Dowser Quarterly Digest Winter 2003

The following is an extract from two articles that were previously published in the 'Dowser's Digest,' the Journal of the Holistic Intuition Society in Canada.

One aspect of Health that is now receiving recognition in North America is the effect of earth and water energies. The original Feng Shui included the location and identification of these 'dragons,' but the loss of understanding of this system over the years has caused many practitioners to just "go by the book" without using the needed dowsing skills.

In Europe, the builders of cathedrals and ancient structures like Stonehenge were aware of these energies and chose sites with the utmost care. But even good energies can be harmful (and so noxious to humans, animals, insects, plants, etc.) if they are too strong for the individual or the exposure is too long.

Humans, dogs, horses, cows, sheep, and pigs find most of these energies noxious; so if your dog loves to sleep in your chair or on your bed it is probably clear of these energies. But if a cat chooses such spots, beware; cats, ants, and bees love the concentrations. Beekeepers try to place their hives on energy crossings to get increased honey yields.

The energies themselves are not the disease. Their noxious effect lowers our resistance and vitality so that diseases that we would normally overcome are able to take root and harm us.

Noxious Effects of Earth Energies

German medical doctors, including Dr. Curry and Dr. Hartmann, investigated these noxious energies in modern times, as well as Gustav Baron von Pohl. Studies were made by dowsers of where noxious energies existed, then were plotted on maps and compared with deaths from cancer with excellent correlation. As a result there are places in Europe where geopathic studies are required before hospitals, schools, and other institutions are built.

In Austria, Kathe Bechler conducted a study of over 12,000 people in fifteen countries and 3,000 homes where extended sitting or sleeping caused sudden infant deaths, inattention at school, and diseases such as cancer, arthritis, and heart problems. In all these cases, when the seat or bed was relocated to avoid “bad spots”, the health problems disappeared.

Russian experience concurs. Dr. Melnikov, Director of the Medical and Ecological Department of the Geo-Ecological Centre in St. Petersburg, reports a five-year study looking at a five-mile stretch of the city for geopathic zones in which 100 of 1,000 houses were labelled as being ‘cancer houses.’ Hospital and medical records were checked; ninety percent of oncological cases occurred in the zones, including direct correlation with leukemia in children. Traffic records showed a corresponding high rate of traffic accidents in the streets.

It has been determined that these energies rise way above ground. A person in an apartment at the top of a high-rise building will be just as susceptible as a person living on the ground floor.

In the ‘normal’ North American population, about 25 percent of deaths occur from cancer. European studies show that the incidence of cancer in gypsies is low; less than one percent had any relation who had died from cancer. The gypsies seldom stay in any one place for an extended period and may also be aware of places to avoid.

So what are these energies ? What do they do ? And what action should we take to mitigate harmful effects ? Noxious water was the primary interest of Gustav Baron von Pohl, who worked in Germany during the 1920s, assisted by other dowsers. They located these streams or veins, measuring their depth, width, and strength. Using a scale like the Beaufort Wind Scale, the value was found by dowsing, but the details seem not to be available now. (See his book Causative Factor of Cancer and Other Diseases for more information.) The Baron also was able to predict where lightning would strike, i.e. at crossings of water veins having specific characteristics.

My understanding is that the water is carrying “bad energies” to be “healed good” within the bowels of the earth, known as Gaia. These noxious energies can be helped to be good, and so less noxious to humans, by being blessed, and sending them true holy love. When I bless a vein of noxious water and test the results, I find that it has lost most of its attributes that are noxious to humans.

Curry and Hartmann Grids

Curry Grid lines were found by Dr. Manfred Curry, M.D., in Germany. They run NE/SW and NW/SE, at spacings of about ten feet (three meters). They alternate in having Yin or Yang characteristics. Where two lines cross, their effect may be magnified and an energy vortex formed, which can be even more noxious. Mike Doney, one of the world’s most experienced dowsers of energies, gets people to dowse for lines (or vertical bands) of energies carrying hate, anger, and greed, or love, joy, and healing. My dowsing indicates that these lines are at the same locations as the Curry Grid lines — that they are carrying our emotions, perhaps forming the aura of Gaia !

I understand that most of the Curry Grid lines are like residential roads carrying small amounts of traffic. At about every 100 lines they are reinforced by main roads which have heavier loads, and at about every 100 main roads is a freeway, and if you sleep on a freeway, you can expect to be injured !

The Hartmann Grid was identified by Dr. Hartmann in Germany in the 1930s. It runs N/S and E/W, the spacing varying with latitude between about six feet (two meters) and 12 feet (four meters). Slim Spurling, the inventor of many energy tools, believed that these are caused by electric systems, especially in places where an earthed mid-point is used to distribute electricity, such as in North America. He says that the Hartmann Grid lines were sought in the Amazon jungle, where no electricity distribution system exists so far, but not found.

I dowsed that the Hartmann Grid exists in all places. It is the road that is used by energies (such as a member from a dowsing team) in travelling around the earth, to get the current location of a person, etc. but it gets polluted by the electrical distribution system. Like the Curry Grid, it has a one-way street system, alternating Yin and Yang, with residential roads, main roads, and freeways.

Slim Spurling recommended placing welding rods across these Hartmann lines where they enter a property. He (and clairvoyant assistants) 'see' the effect as deflecting the lines over the property. Michael Stodola has demonstrated in many of his workshops on Geobiology that it is useless to just place the rods; they must be placed with intent. This means being instructed in the job required, the duration of their job, and given true holy love.

People who are clairvoyant seem to be able to 'see' Hartmann Grid lines, but not Curry Grid lines. This may be due to the Curry Grid's being in the etheric plane, and the Hartmann Grid being in the astral plane where most clairvoyants operate.

Electro-Magnetic Fields (EMF)

EMF has been investigated by dowsers in Europe and North America. It is another form of energy which causes harm to humans and other animals. The energy comes from transformers, computers, television sets, microwaves (especially microwave communication towers), cell phones, electric clocks, and even unused electrical outlets.

Devices are sold which give various degrees of protection, and magnets are often recommended to be placed at the sources, such as at transformers.

Gary Skillen has found that crushed calcite crystals are excellent for absorbing the EMF radiations.

I experimented with placing thought forms of such crystals at a few electrical outlets and in front of my sound system and found that they worked well. After a couple of days the effect returned, so I asked why this happened. I was told, “We are overloaded. We need to be grounded.” I placed a grounding thought form in the piles of metaphysical calcite crystals, and they are doing a good job again.

The effectiveness of the calcite crystals seems to be enhanced by placing a sodalite crystal on top. If you placed a thought form in the calcite crystals, then use another thought form for the sodalite (or add it to the calcite thought form).

Electricity is generated in three phases. Especially in rural areas in North America, it is distributed by taking leads from just two phases, with 220 volts between the phases, and having a ground which gives about 110 volts between each lead and the ground. But loads are not equal, and so the ground is seldom at zero volts.

Additionally there is a voltage between these grounds due to being at the centre of different phase connections. This current flows in the earth to give balance, and itself generates magnetic effects.

It appears that we can divide these energies into two types: the metaphysical and the physical. In the metaphysical category we have the energies radiated by noxious water and the Curry Grid lines. Neither is detected by physical apparatus, and both can be improved by blessing them and sending them true holy love. In the physical category we have electro-magnetic pollution and radiation, detectable by instruments and deflectable by both physical and metaphysical devices.

Locating and Quantifying Earth Energies

Location of earth energies is best done by dowsing, which works in all auric planes. Now that these various types of energies have been described to you, you are able to think about them and tune into them.

Greater accuracy would be useful when adding various different energetic effects, and crucial in better understanding the relationship between different energies, such as evaluating the changes in energy strength of two Curry Grid lines due to the effect of the vortex caused at the crossing, or the effect of a noxious water vein.

Accordingly I have designed a Logarithmic Numeric Chart specially for the dowsing of the lower values encountered in handling noxious energies.

A good instrument can be made by copying the chart, sticking it onto a piece of plywood, and protecting it by clear plastic; for example, a bag, bent over to seal it, and then stapled or taped tight.

Chart
Evaluation of Noxious Energies
& their Effect on People

S (Strength) = Hours recharge needed for each hour in the energy - for the 'Average Person in Good Health'

R (Recharge Hours) = S * (Hours in noxious energy).

P (Personal Factor) by which to multiply the 'Recharge Hours' considering a particular individual's present state of health compared to the 'Average Person in Good Health'. Personal Recharge Time = $S * P * (\text{hours spent in energy each day})$. Total Daily Recharge Time is the sum of this for all energies in the day. The cumulative effect is 24 hours less the Total Daily Recharge Time.

These are best used with a pendulum, by moving the chart to various locations (such as by just walking with it) and getting the readings of energy strengths, and checking if the effect is noxious to humans, as it will be in most cases. You can quickly find its type by asking, "Is it a Curry line ?", "Is it a noxious water vein ?", "Is it EMF ?", and "Is it another energy field ?" and asking for a Yes or a No circle to be made. Remember that a combination may be involved!

You can use a normal counting chart to check a person's Battery Strength; perhaps in terms of their personal 24-hour day (my approximate values are shown) at full charge (1000), and the critical strength level needed for good health (500). Then find their present strength above (300) or below (200) the critical level. Each day they get 24 hours of recharge; this is first used to compensate for the needed Daily Recharge Time of the day.

If a person spends six hours a day in bed, having a depletion strength 'S' of 3 due to a Curry line and/or noxious water, they have used 18 hours ('R') battery recharge. Spending six hours each day in an office chair, having a depletion of 2 due to EMF radiations, they have used a further 12 hours of battery recharge.

Watching TV for two hours each evening, if in a Curry Crossing plus Noxious Water Vein with EMF added from the television set, could combine to a depletion of 4, using another eight hours of their battery charge. This totals 38 battery recharge hours needed, compared to 24 hours normal recharge that is available. The result is a steady drain on their 'energy battery,' leading to health and other problems.

The Society is committed to an educational role in dowsing, so we are announcing our fourth seminar for this year.

This is a followup to the 'Practical Uses of Scientific Dowsing' presentation held in September last year, presented by Francois Capmeil. It will be an intermediate level seminar which will include a review of last year's material.

The Seminar cost is $120 for members and $140 for non-members. Non-members will have the opportunity to join the Society on the day at a discounted price. A seminar registration form is available on the next page. If you want to attend, pull the registration form out of the newsletter and mail it, with your cheque or money order, to our Seminar Coordinator, Sally Lamont. Sally's details are on the form on the next page.

If the person is in poor condition, they may have a 'P' Personal Factor of 1.2, thus showing that they have used 1.2 times 38 'R', or almost two full days of normal recharge, and all people would also be using more of their battery charge doing other duties during the day.

The order of asking about depletion energies may best be:

1. Earthbound Energies (Souls, Spirits - of all types) - since they are so strong that their effect 'blankets out' other readings.
2. Curses - because they are usually covering a very large area.
3. EMF Radiations - often being noxious over a large area (from transformers), or very local (electric appliances).
4. Noxious Water Veins - they wander across the grids.
5. Curry Lines - easily identifiable, known spacing.
6. Pollution in Hartmann Grid - perhaps more common in rural areas, due to unbalanced electrical distribution systems.
7. Other Sources - ask as guided by your intuition.

Thought Forms and Blessings

Remember that to place any thought form, you go into prayer mode (being sincere), explain what effect you wish to achieve, tell how you intend to do this, and ask permission to proceed. When granted, you just imagine (in your mind) that it is being done (and it helps to put physical effort into the work, such as by making large clockwise circles with your bobber or pendulum), and then confirm that it is placed with true holy love to do the (specified) job for the time stated (such as the life of the building), and then give thanks to all who helped this to be manifested.

When blessing noxious water, go upstream (again in your mind) to the sources (imagining all the tiny little veins starting and then joining together) and bless the vein itself and the water which it carries for the whole course of its existence. This can be beneficial to many others who would otherwise be subjected to its noxious effects. Having good intent, placing with true holy love, and designating the effective time are all critical; action using your pendulum or bobber increases the effectiveness, and give thanks to all who assist in your good work!

Quote of the day

“Until one is committed, there is hesitancy, the chance to draw back. Concerning all acts of initiative (and creation), there is one elementary truth the ignorance of which kills countless ideas and splendid plans: that the moment one definitely commits oneself, then Providence moves too. All sorts of things occur to help one that would never otherwise have occurred. A whole stream of events issues from the decision, raising in one’s favor all manner of unforeseen incidents and meetings and material assistance, which no man could have dreamed would have come his way. Whatever you can do, or dream you can do, begin it. Boldness has genius, power, and magic in it. Begin it now.”

Dealing with Entities

by Terry Ross

A lively interest persists in entities - what are they, how do they behave, what effects do they have on man and beast, where does one find them and, once dowsed, how does one deal with them safely and with dispatch? Here is my spin on entities.

In all but the rarest of cases, entities are ensouled incarnates who have, for one reason or another refused or been unable to make a complete transition to the next level of existence, but have remained to be near a cherished place or person. They like their own company and can be found frequently in groups of three. Their somewhat dicey and ambivalent state requires a support system of underground veins of flowing water with which their presence always coincides. Once established over such a network of veins they are reluctant to move and will continue to enjoy the humans who live or work at that site, sometimes for many years as are the ghosts attributed to Anne Boleyn at Hampton Court, the Brown Lady of Raynham Hall in Norfolk, or the gregarious figments who appears to guests in the George and Pilgrim at Glastonbury.

Living as they do over complex water veins and attracted to certain people, the combined effect on health can be disastrous, a double whammy on the immune system, with inevitable dislocation of susceptible sites in the genome. This has turned out to be true for animals as well, especially dogs who, like infants, often favour play with spectral companions. Disruption of the renal function and cancer are two typical results.

One finds entities everywhere - in high rise apartments, country retreats, office buildings, and in the case of livestock, in pastures and on the open range. Museums with historic regalia and, unfortunately, public and governmental forums are anything but immune. Their influence can in certain cases be destructive to the nth-degree, and one has only to consider the Nazi interest in the occult to imagine their baleful contribution to history.

Considering their world-wide presence, they form a shadow blocking the light of awareness, comity and good will, which we can only hope will eventually be lifted when the new and intense energy that has been, is and will be entering the earth reaches a point that will force their retreat. There is some evidence that they sense the inevitability of this shift as they become more strident and invasive of what must be called their victims.

Meanwhile, how may a dowser who comes across the entity problem deal with it? For safety's sake I recommend the triple queries of May I? (Is my action in accord with my highest Source?), Can I? (Am I up to it?) and Should I? (Is this the time to do it?).

If all the queries receive a positive answer - repeat all - I have found it possible, after jotting down a plan of the house or office or other site under consideration, to map dowse the number of streams involved and their accompanying entities, and proceed with all due protection to escort the entities, either one at a time or in toto, to a plane or planes of existence where they may go forward under the divine plan, and not return to assail the person or animal for whom the request was made.

An example, if one is needed, is reported in my Column for the 101st issue of R&P, though it is true to say that no request for healing is completed without a thorough search of the patient's pattern of comings and goings, both present and past, which in serious cases can be a lengthy undertaking. As a practical guide we learned the hard way that it is best to do the escorting before "de-raying" the water veins. To do otherwise will traumatize the entity, who is suddenly bereft of his/her support system and bring on an unmanageable reaction.

As a footnote to those who may become engrossed in this one facet of dowsing/healing, I would consider it an act of hubris to process more than one individual's request at a time. To take on masses of entities such as one finds at battlefields can be illusory and self-defeating.

I have had experience with the clearing of a farmhouse on the grounds of the First Battle of Bull Run, near Washington, which was known to be haunted. Permission was received from the requisite authorities to try it and happily the results were successful for the site, and more importantly in my view, for the young and frightened Confederate soldiers who were released from their repetitive trauma.

The process is not without risk and each time I invoke all the protection with which I'm familiar. The entities exist in the inter-between half material, half astral and, as no better beings than when they left this plane, can do great mischief.

Drawing on the positive ions emanating from flowing underground water, they are at home beyond space and time, where we are not, and they are capable of joining themselves to our auric fields, from which in extreme cases of invasion, they can enter the organs of the brain to exercise control with effects recognized by medical science as various forms of addiction, multiple personality, and so on.

The question is often asked: Are there not good and helpful entities? My response is, always, that we are focusing on entities per se, not guardians, and that they are in every case 'trapped souls' whose need is to go on to their next true point of development, and than that I could wish no more for myself.

Just Five More Minutes

Author Unknown

While at the park one day, a woman sat down next to a man on a bench near a playground.

“That’s my son over there,” she said, pointing to a little boy in a red sweater who was gliding down the slide. “He’s a fine looking boy” the man said. “That’s my daughter on the bike in the white dress.”

Then, looking at his watch, he called to his daughter. “What do you say we go, Melissa?” Melissa pleaded, “Just five more minutes, Dad. Please? Just five more minutes.”

The man nodded and Melissa continued to ride her bike to her heart’s content. Minutes passed and the father stood and called again to his daughter. “Time to go now?”

Again Melissa pleaded, “Five more minutes, Dad. Just five more minutes.”

The man smiled and said, “OK.”

“My, you certainly are a patient father,” the woman responded.

The man smiled and then said, “Her older brother Tommy was killed by a drunk driver last year, while he was riding his bike near here. I never spent much time with Tommy and now I’d give anything for just five more minutes with him. I’ve vowed not to make the same mistake with Melissa.”

“She thinks she has five more minutes to ride her bike. The truth is, I get five more minutes to watch her play.”

Life is all about making priorities, what are your priorities?

.....Give someone you love 5 more minutes of your time today!

A Tree's Signature

Contributed by John Richardson, one of our members, from Grafton

I was exploring energy around trees when I found something interesting. Try running energy through your hands to a tree, on a day so still that not a leaf stirs.

Select a smooth barked tree, like a silver birch tree, as they are easier than the rough barked trees. Place your hands on the sides of the tree trunk, about where its side pockets would be if it were a human being.

Close your eyes so as to avoid distractions and run energy from your hands into the tree. Keep the energy running and you will get a response of some kind in return.

You may feel that the tree is swaying in your hands, but since the day is still, you know the tree is not moving.

Other sensations such as pulsing, tingling etc, may occur as different trees give off different reactions.

Is this the tree's 'signature' ?

The 'old-man Banksia Tree'- was it much stronger in its reply ?

Book Review

‘Sometimes you find a special book which resonates deeply with your own feelings. I want to share one special extract of the book ‘Path of Empowerment’, by Barbara Marciniak, with you. Highly recommended reading. (the editor)’

To flourish and thrive, you must truly embrace and energize the concept that your physical vehicle is of inestimable value.

These times of change involve a rapid emergence from an era of ignorance, breaking free from an old spell that has been in place for thousands and thousands of years. To flourish and thrive, you must truly embrace and energize the concept that your physical vehicle, the body that you occupy, is of inestimable value. You must accept your own worthiness and be willing and able to feel genuine love and appreciation for who you are. This is the essential key for opening the doors of change and attracting the very, very best experiences that life has to offer.

The love you seek from others must be generated by you, for you. When you feel genuine love for yourself, you are connecting with and contributing to the vital force energy that sustains all of existence; it is the great gift you have to offer the world your own version of the love frequency. To cultivate a loving relationship with yourself, take time every day, morning and evening, to sit or stand in front of a mirror for five to ten minutes for an intimate eye-to-eye appointment with yourself.

Gaze steadily into your eyes, and maintaining direct eye contact, open your heart and tell yourself that you love you. Repeat the phrase “I love you” aloud as you continue to look deeply into the mirror's reflection of your eyes. Watch your pupils and irises, and allow any feelings that the words bring up to flow over your body, like warm sunshine dancing through the depths of the forest.

As you participate in this exercise, you must also observe your actions and responses to your message of love. Do different versions of you appear in the mirror? Are you smiling? Do you meet something that makes you drop your gaze and look away? Is there a part of you that did not accept the love? What is your body doing? Do any tears appear to melt the seals of your memories? Are you holding your breath or breathing long and deep? How do you feel about purposely creating time to tell yourself that you are loved?

Through the course of your life, learning to use your mind in a multitude of ways, such as participating in mental exercises, and then observing and reflecting upon your responses will unlock the mysteries of your own thinking.

Many multifaceted opportunities await, and if you do the work and learn to trust yourself then the times ahead will offer unique experiences to enhance your perceptions of reality. These new perceptions hold life, they hold meaning and ease and healing, and they are transmitted energetically, orb to orb and cell to cell.

As a human being, it is imperative that you understand and trust the life you create.

Astrological Dowsing

by Tom Muldoon

For many people, Dowsing comes naturally, others have to learn the art. Regardless we all need all the help we can get.

Tom will present an interesting idea : 'Can Astrology offer any clues to help develop your Dowsing skills?'

Astrology and Numerology have been Tom's life and passion for over 35 years. Tom gives readings and produces his own Astrological newsletter. When he was introduced to the Dowzers Society of NSW, he began to wonder if his life interest could help him understand a little more about the wonderful 'gift' of being able to dowse.

His vast experience on the subject and his natural presentation skills should combine to make this presentation a stunner.

Come along and find out what he has to say in his own inimitable way.
