- Sound Therapy / Vibrasonics -

Sound therapy is a holistic ancient healing practice aiming to reduce stress and create a greater sense of peace and wellbeing.

John uses a variety of instruments like gongs, Tingshas, Tibetan & Quartz crystal bowls, tuning forks, vocal toning, flutes, lyre, chimes and various percussion instruments to unlock stuck or stagnant ki/chi energy, which is sonically released and restored back into flow through chakra funnelling, polarity balancing and alignment.

Every now and then we require re-tuning just like musical instruments. There are many possible reasons why our homeostasis or balance can be negatively interfered with in our busy city living. These range from something as simple as not getting enough sleep, poor diet, a lack of earthing or emotional turmoil, to the more complex such as the massively increasing background EMF radiation (3 million times more than 30 years ago), or the increasing vibrational frequency oscillations of our planet (7-50 Hz.), or the fluctuations of the Sun's broadband radiation emissions.

Finally there is the combined effect of all these vibrations plus many other subtle influences that go beyond the 'noise', which influence our own unique harmonic symphony.

You can read more about John on his website :

From the Editor

I was so happy to receive Maggie's letter and the protocol she and others have worked on to help ley lines. (page 20). Sometimes it is not easy to get started and to know how to best approach this kind of work. Her protocol is a good start if you want to help. Let's all make an effort now. I will be reporting what I find when I get to Mont-St-Michel in late may.

Sometimes I despair when I hear what is happening in the world. Things are not changing (at least not on the surface) and it is easy to fall into apathy thinking that nothing will ever happen to change the world. Actually this is a trick of the 'devil' because there is only one thing ever that we are in charge of changing, and its not the world, it is us.

By working on ourselves we do change the world in a subtle and positive way. Lets face it, these things do rarely reach the news, but gradually a new psyche builds up for new generations to be influenced by.

As you get older a definite change of perspective does happen. Like they say "if youth had the wisdom of old age and old age the energy of youth..." You gradually realise that time is limited. We rarely think about it, but that is the deal we get when we come down here. You come, you live, and then you have to go. Nothing sad about it, it is just the deal. So an appropriate question would be "What will I take with me ?"

Pondering this question always inspires me to expand my awareness, to focus inside, to want to learn and grow. The Dowsers Society provides great opportunities for learning. Dowsing is a wonderful, mind expanding, awareness enhancing skill to have and practise.

This month we have another morning seminar available, which will be followed by our monthly meeting. You will find a registration form at the end of this newsletter. At the meeting you have the chance to learn and ask questions from experienced dowsers and to share your experiences and successes.

Until next time..

Meeting of Ancient and Modern Worlds

Reprinted from the Canadian Society of Dowzers, Fall Equinox 2003

In March of 1999, my colleague, Slim Spurling and I were asked to come to Caracas, Venezuela to initiate an environmental clearing program in the area. They were facing serious threats due to water and atmospheric pollution that was out of control, being one of the most polluted cities on the planet. While I was somewhat prepared for the pollution, I was not prepared for what I encountered once I arrived.

Unknown to me, Caracas is one of the most masculine-dominated cultures in Latin America. As such, the prevailing attitude is quite neglectful and abusive of Nature and the whole Feminine principle of life. The government is essentially owned by the oil companies who are commonly given a free reign to rape and abuse the land in whatever way they see fit.

The attitude of men towards women is typically male chauvinist, and 'machismo.' This was a challenge for me as the part of the workshop that I was brought down to teach was showing people how to be in a co-creative partnership with Nature. Not surprisingly, almost the entire focus was on government connections and the technology aspect of the workshop, and very little support for the aspect of working in harmony with the nature realms.

A Friendly Visit....

The first night there, I went to bed, and before drifting off to sleep, was visited inwardly by two people who were standing by my bed. With my eyes still closed, I could see them just as clearly as if they were there physically. They were both males wearing a thin string-like cloth around their groin, with dark skin, and straight jet-black hair fashioned in a bowl cut. Their big, deep brown eyes seemed to look right into my soul. They seemed in their mid-twenties, and yet appeared as innocent as children. At their side, they each held a spear made of a thin tree branch in their hands.

As they looked at me, they instantly “communicated” something to me in a way which was totally unfamiliar. It was not exactly telepathic, but was more like a feeling that contained a whole message within it. The message was that they were thanking us for coming there to help the Earth. They were coming to the edge of their world to make contact with us, and asked for us to come to the edge of ours to meet them. They also conveyed that they were connected to the Amazon. Then they just left as quickly as they came.

The next morning, I asked our host if Venezuela had any connection to the Amazon. He replied that the very southernmost region of Venezuela is called the Amazonia region. I had no idea at the time that there was an ‘Amazon’ in Venezuela! Then I told him about my visit and he showed me a picture from a book on Venezuela of a tribe of Indians who lived in that region, the Yanomami. They looked exactly like the two who visited me! Apparently few people see them as they are deep in the jungle, and it was rumored that they are only contacted by those who have been given an invitation.

It did appear that this Amazonia region represented the edge of civilized development in Venezuela. There were plans to bring electricity down into the region, and the villagers were resisting that as it was considered a violation of their sacred land. We looked at a map of Venezuela, and when I looked towards the Amazonia region a place called Angel Falls jumped out at me.

Something in my heart knew that it was essential for us to go there before the workshop. In fact, whatever we were to do there felt even more important than the workshop itself. I was getting a clear and strong message inwardly that if we didn't go to Angel Falls, that nothing we tried to do in the workshop would be successful or of lasting value.

The Pilgrimage to Angel Falls

With one day's notice, we were on a charter plane to Angel Falls some 1000 miles away. The adventure of that trip in a five-passenger plane, during a lightning storm at night, low on fuel, is another story rivaling anything from Indiana Jones.

When we arrived there, we discovered that the Yanomami live on the plateau of what they called the 'Grand Savanna' from which Angel Falls emerges.

It is considered the most sacred land in Venezuela. Even from the plane I could feel the immense and awesome presence of the Being at the Falls. It felt like we had tapped into a quintessential spot where the Feminine energy was linked to the planet, like an umbilical cord to the Mother Herself.

Once there, we learned that it takes several days by boat up river and then a rugged hike through the jungle terrain to get to the Grand Savanna. I was heartbroken to learn that due to the time constraints of the workshop, we were not able to make that journey to meet with the Yanomami in person. We'd travelled all this way, and were so close, and yet we could not make contact. I'd felt as though we'd failed.

Unable to get any closer to the Falls by foot, we circled around the Falls a few times by plane and then landed about three miles downriver from the Falls at an encampment called Canaima. While the camp was a very beautiful place, I couldn't shake the feeling of discouragement that we were not able to meet with the Yanomami in person. Since we were at the camp, we went ahead with the ceremony we had planned to do at Angel Falls.

A colleague flew into Caracas a couple of days earlier from Australia to meet us and brought his didgeridoo, and I had an agricultural harmonizer (one of the tools that we use for environmental clearing) and a tape of sound frequencies also used in our environmental clearing sessions.

Together, we proceeded with a ceremony at the bank of the river near one of the smaller falls a few miles downstream from Angel Falls. After a while, Slim joined us and with him was a young man he met at the camp, whose father was a Tribal Elder of one of the Indian tribes in the area.

Slim invited him to observe what we were doing and bring that information, along with a ring Slim invented, back to his father. This ring was a token to represent our efforts to meet them. So this young man appeared as an emissary able to travel through the terrain that barred us from making contact with the Yanomami in person.

As we proceeded with the ceremony, we seemed to uncork something very deep from within the Earth that was bottled up at that spot. A group from San Diego, California was meditating with us at that time and reported one of the most powerful meditations that they had ever had. They saw something get released from deep within the Earth. Ancient pains and abuses that were being held within the Earth were being released from that point as if it were acting like a central pressure valve for the whole area.

The whole process took about 30 minutes, and when it was over we got back in the plane and got ready to head home. While in the air, Slim observed a clearing of a dark, black energy he calls D.O.R., which he had noticed in the atmosphere when we first landed, and observed that there was now a clearing of that black energy which extended approximately

A couple of days later we did the workshop in Caracas. During the last day, which is an outdoor experiential in focusing on how to communicate and connect with the devic life in their area to heal imbalances in the environment, a tall, slender young Indian man came up to me and thanked me for the work we were doing. There was something very unique in his demeanor.

He was unusually quiet and self-contained, and I hadn't seen him on the previous two days of the workshop. When I asked him where he'd been the last two days, he said that he only came for this last day. He then invited me to come to visit their home if I was ever in his area. When I asked where he lived, he replied 'the Grand Savanna.'

Well my mind didn't register the significance of his offer immediately. But after the workshop, my mind began to question his unusual presence. "How did he get to the workshop from the Grand Savanna?" It took us four hours in a charter plane, and cost $1000 to get from Caracas to the nearest camp at the base of the Grand Savanna! "Why did he come all that way only to attend one day of the workshop? Why would he invite me to see him if I was ever there?"

How could anyone from our civilized society live amid the jungle-like terrain of the Savanna? My mind was very confused.

About a week after the workshop was over, it finally dawned on me that while we were not able to physically meet the Yanomami, that they had sent a messenger to meet us. We had gone as far to the edge of our world as we could. And they in turn sent an emissary to ours to acknowledge our efforts and let us know that “contact” was made.

While the environmental clearing work in Caracas was successful, I realized that the ceremonial work with Nature at Angel Falls provided the necessary groundwork for that success. Had we tried to clear such a Male-dominated area without the support of the main Feminine power point, our efforts would not have succeeded.

The KOGI Connection

For over a year, I just kept that experience with the Yanomami in the file in my mind where I store all the other odd experiences that I’ve had while doing this kind of work around the world. Until later in that year, I began to see where the experience with the Yanomami fit into a bigger picture of something that is happening around the planet. It was in May of that year that I attended a workshop by a fellow co-worker named Drunvalo Melchizedek, who shared with us a recent life-altering experience he had with an Indian tribe called the KOGI. They are a tribe who live high in the mountains of Columbia, and were one of the only tribes to have escaped conquest by the Spanish back in the 1600’s. Consequently, they retained much of their original understandings and connections with the Earth.

One of the things that make them so unique is their method of communication. They don’t use language as we know it. Instead they make certain sounds which come directly from their heart and when uttered convey 3-D pictures for the recipient. This language of the heart is a universal language that all living beings understand. It predates all other known languages and at one time on the planet was a universal means of communication for humanity.

In the Bible, it tells of the story of the Tower of Babel in which humanity at one time spoke a universal language. Afterwards, humanity was divided and the one language split into the multifarious different languages that have evolved into what we have today.

 Even the term babel (sic) /babble has come to mean an indistinguishable nonsense.

Until recently, the KOGI could not find any other tribes who remembered how to communicate in this universal manner from the heart. They thought that they were the only ones, until they discovered another tribe of Mayan Indians who could also communicate with them. This process of communicating, from the heart is easy to learn and while it is a major 'new' piece, in truth it is ancient.

It is about remembering a universal 'language' which comes from the heart, not the head, and which once remembered, connects us to all life in a very special way. When we are connected in that way, something very miraculous can occur - even beyond what we have already experienced. It seems to add a whole new depth and dimension to our relationship with life and with Nature. It allows us to connect with the Mother in a way that connects us with all of life, and from that point we move through the reality in a totally different way. It is a feminine way of relating to nature, through sound, feelings, pictures, and images. It's not new, we are just remembering it, and with it, our connection to the web of life of which we have always been a part.

After the workshop, Drunvalo asked me to include this method of telepathic heart communication in my workshops saying, that the Earth needed people to assist Her in this way and that it would really add a dimension to what I was teaching people about how to communicate with the devas and nature realms.

I agreed and since then have been doing that in all the workshops. But the interesting thing of it was that there was this connection between the ancient ways and modern technologies. As though the ancient people were trying to reach us - come to the edge of our world if we would come to the edge of theirs, as the visiting Yanomami had said.

Modern Science meets Ancient Wisdom

After this experience, it began to make sense what had been happening throughout the last several years of working with the Earth healing technologies. While in South Africa, Slim was met by Credo Muktwar, who acknowledged that their tribe had known and seen the type of technologies we were working with for hundreds if not thousands of years. In fact they had something looking almost exactly like Slim's harmonizer which we used in Angel Falls, on the top of their ancient tribal sticks of power.

It was said that he who had the stick would rule the area wisely. In Egypt, ancient hieroglyphics show priests using a caduceus rod of initiation, which is designed in the double helix wrap, like the ring which we gave as a gift to the young Indian man in Cainama.

Other depictions of this technology are seen in Egyptian pictures and look like jewellery - did they know what they were wearing? Were they conscious of the energies contained in those designs?

So these technologies, while seeming new to us today, actually had their origins in ancient times and apparently ancient people knew how to use these tools. Now, these people were sending emissaries to meet with us - but why?

Perhaps to remind us that the Earth's problems cannot be solved from a strictly left-brained, technologically-driven, approach. Left and right brain approaches must be unified to produce the synergy necessary to solve the Earth's problems we are trying to address. The Earth Herself must be included in this process!! This is one reason why the work with the devas needed to proceed hand in hand with the technology aspect to be effective. And while most of humanity has forgotten this understanding of how to be in communion with the Earth, it is still a part of our genetics.

The remembrance of this ancient form of communication which the KOGI have retained, is just one method of re-establishing our harmonic relationship with Mother Earth again, and it is part of our heritage and an essential part of our making our way out of the technological nightmare in which we are presently embroiled.

When I reflected upon the 'contact' by the KOGI I saw that it was a similar experience I had with the Yanomami. Then I began to see a pattern emerge. I saw that through connecting with the indigenous people and their wisdom, that they were able to help us to connect to the Christ Consciousness Grid, because they lived on a grid that was a harmonic to the Christ Consciousness Grid we were working to manifest.

This fitted in perfectly with the Huna teachings which said that to reach the Higher Self, one had to first go down to the Lower Self (the connections with the Earth.) So it began to make sense why we were being contacted by these keepers of ancient wisdom.

I've since realized that it is essential for us to proceed with any planetary healing work hand in hand with the ancient caretakers and indigenous people of this Earth. We are certainly newcomers to this scene. We have much to learn from them and their wisdom. Like a labyrinth, sometimes you have to go backwards to go forward.

The Heart is the Key

As you may know, some of the top scientists on the planet have done very elaborate computer models of the condition of our environment. What they have discovered is that according to their models, we only have a few years left before six major systems on Earth completely collapse. They also know that there are no solutions currently which can fix this situation on a strictly 3-D level within that time frame.

Science knows this. What this means, is that literally for the planet to survive, as a human race we have to shift to another level of consciousness to be able to address the situation that exists on Earth right now. This is not an optional experience, but a mandatory prerequisite to our survival as a planet.

After this experience I realized that what we are teaching in the workshops goes far beyond how to clear the earth energies of their space, whether it is a home or a city, or get rid of their aches and pains with the tools, or grow a better crop of corn by talking with the devas, or eradicate chem trails or clear pollution. What we are really teaching them is how to relate to the world from another level of consciousness. From that level of consciousness, we can heal the chaos and trauma of our own body, our cities, and our planet. It can only happen when we make that shift in consciousness.

Footnotes:

Genesis 11: 1 states, Now the whole earth had one language and few words... And the Lord said, “Behold, they are one people, and they all have one language; and this is only the beginning of what they will do; and nothing that they propose to do will now be impossible for them. Come, let us go down, and there confuse their language, that they may not understand one another’s speech.”

Therefore the city was called Babel, because the Lord confused the language of all the earth; and from there the Lord scattered them abroad over the face of all the earth.

To Dowse is Divine

*Written by Virginia Baker
Canadian Society of Dowsers Sept 2002*

Dowsing is the art of searching for anything lost, missing or badly needed with a hand held instrument called a divining rod. Some folks say that it is the work of the devil, let me tell you what the Bible has to say about this subject of divining, because the priesthood has been using the divining rod all along.

In Exodus 4:17 it reads “And then take in thy hand this rod where with thou shalt do the signs.” Jeremiah 1: 11 “Moreover the word of Jehovah came over me saying what seeth thou and I said I see a rod of an almond tree.” Then said Jehovah “Thou hast well seen for I watch over my word to perform it.” Micha 7:14 “Feed thy people with the rod.” Revelations 11: 1 “and there was given me a reed like unto a rod and one said raise and measure the temples of God, and the altar and them that worship therein.”

For thousands of years man has used this method to search out needed water supplies and to locate minerals deep in the earth. The power to divine is innate within everyone, but like all talents, must be learned and developed. There are societies all over the world that promote dowsing. Our American Society of Dowsers is located in Danville, Vermont.

If you grew up on a farm you no doubt have seen a dowser make a location for a water well, working with a forked stick. In Bible times the divining device was called a Rod, a Reed or a Staff. Today the dowser works with a Y-rod, L-rod, Wand or Pendulum that can be made from anything, even a simple coat hanger. The device is only the indicator, and has no power, man is the channel for this power to become manifest.

I first learned to divine, using a pendulum back in 1968. It was fascinating to discover that everything radiates an energy that we call the Life Force. Food took on new meaning when I held a pendulum over it and could visibly see the energy it radiated. Even apparently beautiful fruits and vegetables could seem lifeless when checked with this method, while others manifested great energy. As I learned more about food contamination due to insecticides and storage methods, I could begin to see the importance of knowing the degree of life force in the foods I ate.

I also discovered that foods BLESSED increased in energy nearly two fold. Using a pendulum will also indicate the foods that are especially good for you, or help you locate the foods that are harmful. Remember, individual needs vary, so the pendulum is helpful to determine vitamin and mineral needs too.

Be sure to keep a pendulum in the kitchen to check those left-overs in the refrigerator! If the food has lost its life force you will not derive any good from eating it, in fact, you will lose energy.

As we enter the Aquarian Age, we are learning more about color and its influence in our life. I'm sure you are all aware of the fact that you feel better in certain colors.

Perhaps you have not discovered that we live and move in a world of color! Yes, color is everywhere in our universe. Have you not visibly seen a rainbow on a sunny day as you were watering the lawn? The colors you wear or surround yourself with attract more of the same from this universal supply.

For perfect harmony in your life you need a balance of color. When in doubt as to your needs, a pendulum will tell you. Simply ask: “Do I need Yellow? Red? Green?” etc., and you will learn what is needed to harmonize your inner being. Concentrate on a blue sky and feel a spiritual uplift. Green is not only cooling, but is great for inner peace. If you need to ac-accomplish a lot, try wearing red! Become aware of color in your world.

It really would not be fair if I were to interest you in the pendulum and what it can do for you, and not tell you how it works.

First, buy a pendulum or find yourself anything that you can tie a string through, such as a prism from a lamp, a ring, a fish weight or a bolt.

Next, attach a string about six inches long and you have a pendulum. Now you are ready to let it show you what you can do.

Hold the string between your thumb and forefinger and mentally tell it to indicate what signal it wants to use for a “Yes” answer.

Now please be patient at first if it is a little slow in moving. Some of you will get a response right away, and others will have to try a little harder. After you have established your “Yes” answer, ask for your “No.” It is most important that you let your inner self supply the answers to your questions.

If you concentrate on the question your conscious mind has to get out of the way. Remember to be grateful for this power, I always say “Thank you Father.” Begin your dowsing experiments on the foods you eat, what to wear, and your vitamin and mineral needs.

You are in tune with the Infinite, and your journey on the path of life will be richer and fuller as you grow in the Light of Truth.

Kaulike

- A Simple Way to Help Someone Feel Good
From 'Urban Shaman' by Serge Kahili King

The Hawaiian word, Kaulike, means 'balance or harmony' and is a very simple technique to actively (or passively, through imagination) bless someone as a way of sharing Aloha, 'The Sacred Breath'.

Because "energy flows where attention goes", the act of touching lightly by the sender is immediately re-balancing the energy of the receiver, and BOTH physical bodies are balanced.

First, stand in front of the receiver and touch him or her with the fingers of alternating hands for about one second (count one-thousand) on the crown of the head, the throat, the chest, the solar plexus, and the belly button.

Then use both hands on either side of the body at the same time, and touch in turn - the jaws, shoulders, elbows, wrists, hips, knees, ankles, and toes.

Finish by raising your arms out to your sides and above your head, and sweeping your hands palm-outward and down in front of the receiver (along the central meridian center line) to about the hip level. That's it.

No need for thinking, chanting, breathing deeply or anything except touch and sweep.

You can do this on someone who is unconscious in a hospital, someone sitting and someone far away.

The only limitation is your own skills in imagining and focus.

Thoughts on Genetic Modifications

By Edward Bush

Canadian Society of Questers, Spring 2004

A recent comment in an article about tulips particularly struck me. It was that the varieties which attracted bees and insects, in spite of intensity and colour, were the ones that dowsed most positively (= had the largest energy field or aura), yet the hybrids (genetically modified) seemed dead on the energy level.

Again, quite dull looking flowers were generating enormous energy whilst the tulip display was disappointing from an energy point of view. So why not the tulips? They were largely hybrid and sterile.

My own experience in dowsing the auras of numerous plants, fruits and vegetables has confirmed these findings, and that the simplest and most natural life-forms, ie. unmodified by man's efforts, have the most energy. Any competent dowser can demonstrate the difference in energy between organic and today's mass-produced foods.

As an example, I find that the aura of an ordinary battery egg is usually about an inch. The next step up is an egg from a hen fed on a better diet, marketed here under the name of 'Barn 3' or something similar. These have an aura of about two inches. Then come eggs marked 'free run' at three to four inches.

Beyond that are eggs marked 'organic' at four to six inches. Best of all are 'Organic Free Range' at eight inches; ie. the most natural you can get, and with eight times the energy of the battery eggs most would rather get these. I suspect, yet cannot prove, that genetically modified plants and animals conform to this model.

I enjoy eating baked potatoes yet I have been told that the russet skinned potatoes that we have been using for many years are, in fact, hybrids or modified. Certainly I have found that none of the russet potatoes have any aura at all compared to almost all the other kinds of potatoes I have measured, which have auras in the range of two to four inches (five to ten cm).

If hybrid or genetically modified plants and animals are energetically dead in this way, what can we expect of irradiated foods? I know that microwaving any kind of food or drink totally destroys any energetic life it may have had. I understand that seeds that have been microwaved lose their ability to reproduce.

I often wonder what the long term effect of a diet of genetically modified food would be on mice, guinea pigs, birds and eventually, humans. And by long term I mean over several generations, which, after all, is the way we ought to look at it for the survival of our kind on this planet. It is very suspicious that tests over several generations would result in the same sort of outcome that Dr John Ott discovered when he exposed a family of ferrets to pink fluorescent lights over a long time. If I remember correctly, after three generations of this treatment the ferrets could no longer reproduce. A great thought for the future of mankind, don't you think?

It is all very well for the dowser to say, "This plant is a hybrid or has been genetically modified. It has no energy compared to a similar unmodified plant." Who in the scientific world is going to believe the dowser? But if a well-run, long term test program was able to show that feeding such hybrid plants to laboratory animals had the effect of stopping their reproduction after several generations we would have learnt a lot, and just possibly, someone would sit up and take notice.

I put this idea out in the hope that some enthusiastic dowser might like to start an informal test program on his or her own.

Ley Lines Update

I have received encouraging feedback from some of our readers, showing that we can make a substantial difference. See below part of a letter from Maggie Lowe. I hope that more people will be inspired to help.

Apropos to your article in this month's Newsletter about the damaged Athena Line at Mont-St-Michel, Normandy, I'm sending you info on some of the healing work done since you drew our attention to the damage at the DSNSW meeting in 2015.

You showed a picture of the tomb at Glastonbury where an energy line had split and travelled around it to rejoin at the other side then travel on. It occurred to me that the same thing could be possible for the damage at Mont-St-Michel so I dowsed and found that it could be. Martine agreed to do it with me and Francine Lamessager, whose in-laws live nearby the site, joined us later. We began on 19th August 2015.

At first I was guided to raise the life force energy % (then showing only 10%) for 5 days before attempting to do any realignment work. Dowsing revealed that this was to be done 3 times a week, which I did until I asked the DSNSW Healing Group to include in it their weekly work when it improved markedly.

It appears that the line has found its way around the blockage and has repaired somewhat. I haven't sent an article for the Newsletter, preferring to wait until you visit the site and are able to dowse and 'feel' what is happening there. I really look forward to hearing what you, the editor, discover. Please let me know, I feel a close connection to my friend Athena.

Enclosed is a copy of some notes I made at the time we started doing the work and I am working weekly on it.

Repair of the Athena Ley Line

At Mont-St-Michel, Normandy, France, 19 August 2015

Maggie Lowe and Martine Negro, later Francine Lamessager
Seeking assistance from Archangel Michael & the Goddess Athena

Wednesday 19th August 2015

“We ask respectfully, with utmost love and purity of intention, to assist in the return to normal form and function of the Athena Energy Line which has been diminished by obstacles caused during construction of a bridge at Mont St-Michel in Normandy, France.”

“We request that all frequencies of physical, energetic and spiritual damage are scrambled and that a strand of the Athena Line is shown an illuminated safe way around the obstacle. “We invite her then, with our support, to rejoin the undamaged line with increased power, and to accept all healing sent to facilitate this.”

Maggie to raise the Athena Line energy life force % on Friday 21st, Sat, Sun, Mon and Tues 25th before next step. Life force at start this work was only 10%

Wednesday 26th August 2015

As above then... “We invite another strand of energy to similarly travel around the opposite side of the obstacle, to isolate it and rejoin the undamaged line to become one complete Athena Energy Line.”

“May she be charged with Divine golden light and return to the frequencies of the perfect form and function of her Etheric Blueprint, in order to fulfil her Divine Purpose. So be it”.

Blessings: “We ask a blessing of love, light, wholeness, power and the ability for the Athena Line to hold this new form, as long as it is necessary, in order to travel freely along her journey around the world”.

The life force energy increased steadily, then improved further when the Healing Group also worked on it.

- Energetic Lymph Therapy Workshop -

Sunday May 15th, 2016

- with Vara Maranda -

This morning workshop will introduce a new Australian energetic technique using Quartz tools, in a specific rhythmic sequence around the body. It is a unique technique which creates a pulsating effect with the clients biomagnetic field. This directly stimulates and balances the energetic and the physiological systems eg. lymphatic, nervous system, neuro vascular etc. Anecdotal evidence has shown that it:

- Improves energy levels, eliminates body toxins
- Balances & stimulates Chakras, improves lymphatic system
- Decreases Lymphatic swelling (gut, feet, legs, arms, hands)
- Energetic clearing
- May assist with weight reduction in some cases

Everyone welcome to register!

Speakers for June 19th, 2016

Lisa and Pasquo Cassetta

- Meditation on the Map of Australia -

An Application of the Technology of Consciousness -

An audio-visual presentation by Lisa and Pasquo Cassetta.

Lisa and Pasquo have made a life-long study of the relationship between consciousness and energy, and how this relationship forms the basis of our life, and in particular how the current transition into the new age is presenting both challenges and opportunities from an energetic point of view.

This will be a fun, warm-hearted sharing that will instil new optimism and confidence in one's life and in the life of our planet for the future. The presentation will include guided meditation experiences.

What's in the presentation:

- The energetic basis to the new age and how the new energy influx will naturally transform every aspect of life on earth
- The Australia Map Meditation – how it works, its benefit to participants and to the nation and how you can take part
- Who are the Masters of Wisdom and what is their role in today's world?
- Transmission – a Meditation for the New Age
- What are the crop circles and who makes them and why?
- The technology of consciousness and personal awakening
- Meditation and shared energetic experience
